STRUCTURE Connective Tissue Components The highly specialized skeletal muscle cells, or muscle fibers, are covered by a delicate connective tissue membrane called the endomysium (Figure 10-1).
Groups of skeletal muscle fibers, called fascicles, are then bound together by a tougher connec-tive tissue envelope called the perimysium. Sat, 07 Apr 2018

Cell Download - Skeletal muscle cells are derived from individual myocytes which fuse to produce a mature multinucleated muscle fiber. There are few if any of the precursor myocytes found in a mature muscle, and so muscles produce no new cells after maturity. Individual cells respond to training by enlarging and building myofibrils and other components. Sat, 14 Apr 2018
